Vice-Chancellor speaks

I am delighted with the University's new initiative to publish this Newsletter covering our various academic activities, exchanges, research projects and campus life. This six-monthly publication is aimed at the students, alumni, partner universities, the business community, and all well-wishers of this 117-year-old institute. In order to be more environmentally conscious as well as to reach a larger number of readers, I would like for the publication to have a digital issue along with traditional hard copies.

From the Registrar's Desk

The year 2017 has been an eventful one for the institution. The transition from a college to a University brings with it many challenges. As we persevere to keep the history and heritage of Cotton intact, it indeed is a mammoth task to build Cotton University as a platform of higher learning and research. The short but experimental experience of Cotton College State University and the long and brilliant performance history of Cotton College will definitely lead the Cotton University towards achieving the goals. This newsletter is an attempt to document and highlight the activities undertaken by the institution centrally and the departments in 2017. I am sure that this newsletter would give the readers with a fair idea about the various academic and co-curricular activities and achievements of our faculty, students and employees. I wish all the very best to the stakeholders in their effort to build Cotton University as a force to reckon with. I also congratulate the editorial team for bringing out this newsletter in a befitting way.

Editorial

Cotton University has inherited a very strong foundation with academic and intellectual legacy of 116 years of the historic Cotton College. The onus of the University is now to must excel further. It goes without saying the present stakeholders of Cotton University, even in this time of transition, are keeping upright with their potentials to lift the institution to an expected height, some glimpses of which have found expression in the newsletter we are working on. Newsletter helps to showcase the significant activities that are taking place inside the campus. It helps augment and nurture the institutional professionalism. It enhances the culture of documentation of the institution too. Though CU Newsletter has been a bi-annual publication, the reason why we have covered up the one-year period from January to December, 2017 for this issue is that a bulk of newsworthy activities of the University beyond June, 2017 had been left unheeded and undocumented. We have tried to incorporate those events too in this issue of newsletter. I am thankful to all faculty members, non-teaching staff and students of Cotton University for providing information in time as an immediate response to our inkling. I am indeed apologetic that a host of information submitted by the esteemed faculty members has not been included in this issue of newsletter due to the constraint of space. Finally, I would like to appreciate the effort and co-operation of every member of the editorial board in bringing out this newsletter.
