Research at the interface of Chemistry, Pharmaceutical science and Material science aims to address some of the biggest challenges facing mankind in the 21st century. These include combating infections, cancer and antimicrobial resistance and producing a greener and more sustainable world through sustainable manufacturing, managing plastic waste and clean energy. The work and concept within these areas of molecular sciences underpin many of the technologies of our modern lives as well as developing understanding of ancient civilizations. As Royal Global University and Cotton University are the premier Universities in Guwahati, Assam conducting research in these areas, it is considered worthwhile to organize an International congregation of scientists from the diverse allied disciplines like Chemical science, material science and Pharmaceutical science to create a platform for sharing the view and ideas on the contemporary trend in recent advances in chemical and pharmaceutical fields. The scope of the conference covers the recent areas like- Polymer Sciences, Nanotechnology in Medicine, Synthetic Chemistry, Theoretical Chemistry & In-silico Drug Design, Chemistry of Natural Products, Green Chemistry, Catalysis & Bioinorganic chemistry, Polymers in Biomedical application.
